

DESIGN TEMPLATES

A low-cost professional book cover design solution provided by Dugan Design Group. High-quality covers with contemporary design and typography give your new book a competitive edge. Now available exclusively through www.believerspress.com.

COLLECTIONS 1 & 2

dugandes!gngroup

This is a Headline for the Back Cover

WHEN, IN THE COURSE OF HUMAN EVENTS, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bonds which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the laws of nature and of nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. That to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed. That whenever any form of government becomes destructive to these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new government, laying its foundation on such principles and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their safety and happiness.

Prudence, indeed, will dictate that governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly all experience hath shown that mankind are

- more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable
- than to right themselves by abolishing the forms
- when a long train of abuses and usurpations, to which they are accustomed
- pursuing invariably the same object evinces a design to reduce

AUTHOR'S NAME we hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. That to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed.

This is the Book Title

AUTHOR

This is the Book Title

A SUBTITLE
HERE WILL FURTHER
EXPLAIN THE CONTENT

JOHN Q. AUTHOR

THIS IS A HEADLINE FOR THE BACK COVER

WHEN, IN THE COURSE OF HUMAN EVENTS, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bonds which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the laws of nature and of nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. That to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed. That whenever any form of government becomes destructive to these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new government, laying its foundation on such principles and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their safety and happiness.

Prudence, indeed, will dictate that governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly all experience hath shown that mankind are

- more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable
- than to right themselves by abolishing the forms
- when a long train of abuses and usurpations

AUTHOR'S NAME we hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. That to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed.

THIS IS THE BOOK TITLE
AUTHOR

THIS IS THE BOOK TITLE

A ONE-SENTENCE SUBTITLE
APPEARS HERE

USE THIS OR CHOOSE YOUR
OWN STOCK IMAGE

SUSAN Q. AUTHOR

THIS IS A HEADLINE FOR THE BACK COVER

WHEN, IN THE COURSE OF HUMAN EVENTS, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bonds which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the laws of nature and of nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. That to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed. That whenever any form of government becomes destructive to these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new government, laying its foundation on such principles and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their safety and happiness.

"Prudence, indeed, will dictate that governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly all experience hath shown that mankind are to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed."

—THOMAS JEFFERSON

AUTHOR'S NAME we hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. That to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent.

TYPE FOR THE BOOK TITLE

MARY AUTHOR

TYPE

FOR THE

BOOK TITLE

a One or Two-Line Subtitle Fits in Here

AUTHOR

USE THIS OR CHOOSE YOUR
OWN STOCK IMAGE

This is a Headline for the Back Cover

WHEN, IN THE COURSE OF HUMAN EVENTS, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bonds which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the laws of nature and of nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. That to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed. That whenever any form of government becomes destructive to these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new government, laying its foundation on such principles and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their safety and happiness.

Prudence, indeed, will dictate that governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly all experience hath shown that mankind are

- more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable
- than to right themselves by abolishing the forms
- when a long train of abuses and usurpations, to which they are accustomed
- pursuing invariably the same object evinces a design to reduce

AUTHOR'S NAME we hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. That to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men.

USE THIS OR CHOOSE YOUR OWN STOCK IMAGE

YOUR TITLE

YOUR TITLE
PLACED HERE

PLACED HERE

JOHN & MARY AUTHOR

a subtitle of one, two or three lines goes here

JOHN & MARY
AUTHOR

HEADLINE FOR THE BACK COVER OF THE BOOK

WHEN, IN THE COURSE OF HUMAN EVENTS, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bonds which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the laws of nature and of nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

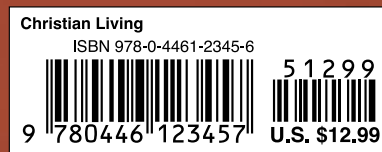

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. That to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed.

Prudence, indeed, will dictate that governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly all experience hath shown that mankind are

- more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable
- than to right themselves by abolishing the forms
- when a long train of abuses and usurpations, to which they are accustomed

AUTHOR'S NAME we hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. That to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed.

PLACE THE TITLE OF THE

BOOK HERE

AUTHOR

This is a subtitle or a lead-in line that could be longer or shorter

PLACE THE TITLE OF THE BOOK HERE

JOHN Q.
AUTHOR

HEADLINE FOR THE BACK

WHEN, IN THE COURSE OF HUMAN EVENTS, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bonds which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the laws of nature and of nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. That to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed. That whenever any form of government becomes destructive to these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new government, laying its foundation on such principles and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their safety and happiness.

Prudence, indeed, will dictate that governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly all experience hath shown that mankind are

- more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable
- than to right themselves by abolishing the forms
- when a long train of abuses and usurpations, to which they are accustomed
- pursuing invariably the same object evinces a design to reduce

AUTHOR'S NAME we hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. That to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed.

This is a subtitle or a lead-in line that could be longer or shorter

PLACE THE TITLE OF
THE BOOK HERE

PLACE THE TITLE OF THE
BOOK HERE

AUTHOR

SUSAN Q. AUTHOR

HEADLINE FOR THE BACK COVER GOES HERE

WHEN, IN THE COURSE OF HUMAN EVENTS, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bonds which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the laws of nature and of nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. That to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed. That whenever any form of government becomes destructive to these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or to abolish it.

Prudence, indeed, will dictate that governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly all experience hath shown that mankind are

- more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable
- than to right themselves by abolishing the forms
 - when a long train of abuses and usurpations
- pursuing invariably the same object evinces a design

AUTHOR'S NAME we hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. That to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers.

PLACE TITLE OF
THE BOOK HERE

PLACE TITLE OF THE BOOK HERE

This is a subtitle or a lead-in line that could be a little longer or shorter

AUTHOR

JOHN Q. AUTHOR

Headline for the Back Cover Goes Here

WHEN, IN THE COURSE OF HUMAN EVENTS, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bonds which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the laws of nature and of nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. That to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed. That whenever any form of government becomes destructive to these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or to abolish it.

Prudence, indeed, will dictate that governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly all experience hath shown that mankind are

- more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable
- than to right themselves by abolishing the forms
 - when a long train of abuses and usurpations
- pursuing invariably the same object evinces a design

AUTHOR'S NAME we hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. That to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers.

This is a subtitle or lead-in line that could be a little longer or shorter

PLACE TITLE

OF THE BOOK HERE

PLACE TITLE
of the
BOOK HERE

USE THIS OR CHOOSE YOUR
OWN STOCK IMAGE

SUSAN AUTHOR